

Seven candidates and a mail-in ballot

DUBLIN — Seven contenders for two director vacancies on the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) board will be in the running, during a mailed-ballot election being held Sept. 6.

This will be the first mailed-ballot election ever held by VCSD. According to law, VCSD must follow up with another election asking if voters approve of mailed ballots for all future general elections.

In the running from Dublin are Kathie Waterson, Harry M. Short and Lila Euler.

San Ramon nominees are Joseph Covello, Paul Schissler, Steve Larson and Robert I. Brown.

Each nominee had to be a registered voter of the VCSD district which includes Dublin and San Ramon. Each of them filed nomination petitions with their respective county Registrar of Voters. On their petitions, each nominee had to have a list of signatures from local citizens supporting him or her.

James A. Riggs, Alameda County Registrar of Voters, has notified VCSD and the general public that all votes cast during this mailed-ballot election "shall be at the hour of 8 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 6, 1977."

A mail-ballot election held in Pleasanton May 31, 1977 was a success as far as voter turnout, according to Deputy City Clerk Larry Miller.

"Voter turnout was approximately 41 per cent," Miller reported. "It was less expensive to have a mailed-ballot election. The cost was one-half of a normal election since we didn't have to set up polling places, hire staff to run polls or pay for having sample ballots printed."

Miller said there was no chance for anyone to cast more than one vote. He explained the outside cover envelope containing the ballot had to be signed. That signature was compared with the voter's signature registered at the county Registrar of Voters office. The Registrar of Voters verified the signatures, according to Miller.

Pleasanton, firefighters break thaw

PLEASANTON — An executive session of the city council called for this Wednesday night

Frederiksen readied as junior high

DUBLIN — Though Frederiksen School Principal Bill Conley last night assured Murray trustees the students, staff and parents of the new junior high would be well oriented by the start of school, he admitted that complete instruction in shop and home economics could not be offered at the outset.

Frederiksen will become the Murray School District's second solely seventh - eighth grade school, as the result of the board approving conversion from K-6 last spring.

Conley told trustees a series of parent - student planning meetings were held, following the organization of a program advisory group last spring.

There will be two days of student orientation and a three day staff or workshop prior to the beginning of classes.

Assistant Superintendent Heinz Gewing reported that administration and teachers have reached tentative agreement on 35 of 43 items of the 1977-78 contract. He estimated a full contract draft might be ready before school starts.

Board members approved a 10 - cent increase in lunch prices, to 60 cents for student meals. The lunch program is operated by the Amador School District.

may spell an end to this year's labor imbroglio.

The closed-door session begins at 5 p.m. in city council chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

While neither side is commenting officially, the session means a break in the ice that has frozen relations between city management and local firefighters.

The fire department's two dozen union members are the only labor group not to sign a pact this year. Police and the City Employees Association signed separate contracts last month.

Fire Fighters Union local 1974 unanimously voted earlier this month to authorize their attorney to sue the city over alleged disparity in previous pay boosts.

The union "can get strike sanction," spokesman Lt. Dennis Laurence said back then, but had no such plans.

City manager Clay Brown offered a "no comment" when asked about the executive session.

Laurence and other union officials could not be reached for comment.

The issue apparently is not wage demands, but benefits and past alleged disparity in pay boosts and benefits among different ranks of the department.

Fire fighters want a dental plan and education incentive program like one now offered other city employees.

They also claim past pay hikes favored non-union department captains.

Drums of low-level radioactive waste sit in Southwest Nuclear's warehouse awaiting shipment to a disposal site. The warehouse is located behind Tennis Town near Pleasanton.

Local firm cleans up on nuclear waste by disposing of it

The "cut throat" business of radioactive garbage has piled up millions of dollars for two local nuclear companies as well as tons of low-level waste buried in the ground.

Nuclear Engineering Company pioneered the radioactive garbage business 20 years ago from a tiny facility on Ray Street in Pleasanton.

Jim Harvey, Executive Vice President of the Pleasanton-based Southwest Nuclear Company has worked at the top of two companies and was instrumental in developing two of the five operative dump sites.

Last month, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory hired Southwest Nuclear to haul their low-level radioactive waste and dispose of it for $38,662.

Both Harvey and James Neel, President of NEC admit that the real danger of radioactive waste comes from spent reactor fuel which is the Federal Government's problem.

Neel said that Federal authorities must reach some decision by 1985 concerning the disposal of high-level waste which he foresees salt or shales depositories.

An LLL employee, however, hints that processing such waste with laser beams might be a better alternative although research may take as long as 10 years.

Get home subsidy

Applications for subsidized housing for low to middle income families in the Valley are being taken by appointment only at the Pleasanton Housing Authority, 6162 Dougherty Road.

Those interested in the Alameda County's Section 8 subsidized housing program may call 828-3132 to get an interview with the housing authority official.

Section 8 housing allows a family to find its own rental. The family pays 25 per cent of income directly to the landlord with the Alameda County Housing Authority subsidizing the rest. Income levels may vary, with a ceiling of $13,600 for a family of four, for example.

The cities of Pleasanton and Livermore operate their own housing authorities, but the Section 8 program is administered by Alameda County. The interviews will be conducted by a county Housing Authority worker.

Gypsy's here

"Gypsy" will have its belated opening night Wednesday at the Amador Valley High School auditorium.

Curtain time for performances Wednesday through Saturday is 8:30 p.m.

The Pleasanton Playhouse production was postponed last Friday and Saturday after an emergency 11th hour meeting of the production staff and director Glenn DuBose. Tickets from the original opening dates will be honored.

Person wishing tickets for other alternate dates may mail in their tickets or drop by the Pleasanton Recreation Department on Bernal Avenue.

Pleasanton crash cuts power, TV

PLEASANTON — The power and cable TV blackout experienced by Castlewood residents Sunday morning occurred after a San Jose man's car crashed into a utility pole while driving south on Sunol Boulevard.

Reports from the California Highway Patrol said that Ragelio Sigala, 42, wandered off the roadway in a 1975 Chevy pickup near the intersection of Castlewood drive and Sunol Boulevard.

A CHP spokesman said the truck then struck a guardrail, a tree, and the utility pole, and landed on its top.

The driver was taken to Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center for suspicion of drunk driving and a passenger, Vincent Sigala, 17, was taken to Valley Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

Police said the vehicle was traveling at a moderate rate of speed when the accident occurred about 2:15 Sunday morning.

A spokesman for Pacific Gas and Electric said some 220 residents in the Castlewood area were without power for about an hour and 15 minutes.

Tele-vue Systems plant manager Bob Brightenstine said the cable TV blackout spread through an area including Castlewood, Foothill, Sunol, Valley Trails, Val Vista, Rose Point, and Happy Valley Road.

"It was about 6:30 in the morning when we received our first complaint," Brightenstine said. "Shortly after 5 p.m. we got it working again."

Brightenstine said the delay was due to PG&E's work in repairing the pole and having to replace several burnt out pieces of equipment.

Chase for two VCSD seats

"One vote per signature was all that was allowed," Miller said.

To insure secrecy, Miller said inner envelopes containing ballots were removed and placed in a ballot box. Outer envelopes with signatures were kept face down.

"The only thing exposed was the receipt which should have been kept by the people in the first place," Miller declared. "However, the instructions were a bit contradictory so some people left the receipt attached."

Later, ballots were counted by machine, Miller said.

The Pleasanton election was for a 29 cent tax override on a public safety measure. It was defeated.

Of the VCSD contenders, Euler is the only incumbent. She has served one term (four years) as a VCSD director. She has a degree from Mills College. Her major was biology.

Brown is president of R.I. Brown, Company in Dublin. His engineering degree was obtained from University of California in Berkeley.

Larson is a management consultant for Coopers and Lybrand in San Francisco. He is also a certified public accountant. He has earned a bachelor and masters degrees in accounting and finance.

Covello has a masters degree in civil engineering. He serves as parks chairman for VCSD Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC). He will give up that position if elected to a directorship.

Waterson listed her occupation as "community affairs advocate." She attended Utah University for three-and-a-half years. Another six months was spent at Diablo Valley College.

Short has a bachelor of arts degree in public relations and journalism from San Jose State University. He listed himself as self-employed as a medical marketing manager.

Schissler is a business representative living in San Ramon.

All seven said the main thrust of their campaign would be handled through posters, handbills, meeting and greeting people in club and group activities.

She sings for the deaf

Patty Walker loves to sing. It's just that nobody can hear her.

Patty, a cheerful 20-year-old from Pleasanton, has been classified as "profoundly deaf" — and as far as music goes, that means she's also tone deaf. That hasn't stopped her though. She sings in a very special way, for a very special audience — in sign language.

"It's a way of communicating and sharing ideas," says Patty, who has a repertoire of some 40 songs in sign language. She demonstrates a portion of the Cat Stevens' tune, "Morning Has Broken," and her hands wave and fly while she whispers the words to herself.

"It's a beautiful language," she adds. "Many of my audiences have been hearing people, and some of them say it looks almost like the hand movements in Hawaiian dancing."

Patty will get a big break this month, when she performs for audiences at the California State Fair on Aug. 27, in a special gospel music show.

Many of her songs, she says, are religious ones. And she's sung them many times for the congregation in the Evangelical Free Church in Pleasanton.

"I learned to do it sort of by accident," she says with a grin. "I couldn't sing with my voice, because of my hearing. So I decided to sing in sign language."

At first, the idea was a bit difficult, she adds. "It's

"Love" is the word Patty demonstrates here in sign language, a means of communication by which she performs some 40 songs. It takes her three or four weeks to translate tunes, which range from Barry Manilow songs to gospel numbers, into the sign language for the deaf.

like learning a foreign language," Patty says of her means of communication. "And when you put it to music, it's really different. You have to get the timing right, feel the mood of the music and use lots of expression" to convey the meaning of the lyrics, she contends.

"It takes a lot of acting," she says, to really sing in the language. "You have to be a ham."

Patty, who graduated from Amador High School in 1975, says it "takes me three or four weeks to learn one song and figure out the signs."

She's expanded her musical knowledge to include tunes like Barry Manilow's "Weekend in New England," and to perform traditional gospel numbers like "For Those Tears I Died" and "Because He Lives." Since she memorized her first tune, Patty has gone on to perform at sunrise at the Alameda County Fair. "Some deaf people used to be ashamed of knowing sign language, it was considered a bad thing once," she contends. "But it is so pretty, and such a good way to communicate," Patty adds, "after all, what good is a spoken word you can't hear it?"

ALL IN GOOD TIME

Time should mean every thing to us. We seem to be its victims. All our hopes and dreams, the substance of our lives, rest in the time we have on earth.

If we cannot use time to our advantage, we feel cheated. If we are pressed for time, the quality of our decisions concerning its use still must remain high.

William Gladstone said, "Time is on our side." But some of us think time is against us. Others maintain that time heals everything. But the fact remains, we cannot live without it.

Once upon a time... even Fairy tales had to have a time to happen in. Your time has come. Yes, you. It's time for you to begin... are you ready? This is your time to live. It only comes once in a lifetime.

Have you left your footprints in the sands of time? Or are they going around in circles back there behind you? Worst of all, have you looked back and discovered you are leaving no footprints?

Maybe that's alright too. Perhaps the good of our lives exists in this moment only.

We spend a lot of time trying to preserve the time we have left. If we know that smoking shortens our lifespan, we stop smoking. If we are overweight, we try to lengthen our lives by losing. Or do we? If we think nuclear power plants shorten our lives, we protest their construction. If we think abortion or the death penalty or neutron bombs threaten the quality of our time, we protest. Don't we?

Maybe it is the quality of each moment that counts with us, the pleasure of each puff of cigarette smoke, the pleasure of each bite of food. Is the quality of the moment measured by the sensations of that particular span of time, or by the meaning of that moment in relationship to all our other moments, past and present? Maybe we would rather not think about any but the present moment.

And if we wish for a happy life, shouldn't this moment, as part of all our other moments supply us with that happiness? We think that if we can just get this moment under control, that all our other moments will also be under our control.

But perhaps Voltaire was right, that "Every man is the creature of the age in which he lives; very few are able to raise themselves above the ideas of the times." This is just as true as the fact that no matter how we try to compensate, our bodies are the products of the environment in which we live, our health and lifespan depend on what happens to our bodies, either purposely or accidentally, because of our surroundings.

We need time to think. We need time to dream, to sort out our thoughts, to decide what comes first on our list of priorities. Though we cannot see it, time is the requirement for existence, except in the realm of abstract thought. Thomas Huxley said that "Time, whose tooth gnaws away everything else is powerless against truth." Truth exists regardless of time.

Do we want to be victims of our times? Is there nothing we can do about our lives, or the times we live in? What is freedom for? Is it something to be believed in, but never to be used? Can we use our thoughts to change our lives, to change our times? Can we use time to our advantage? Or are we merely victims? Only time will tell.

Deadly litter

In these days of summer picnics, it's important to watch out not to leave litter behind in the parks and forests. Why? Because some of it can be deadly for animals.

The plastic six-pack holders are prime offenders. Frequently, when an animal becomes led in the holder after it is discarded, it can mean slow starvation or strangulation. Waterfowl, in particular, are often victims.

Small fish can, and do, get caught in those ring-like pull-tabs from soda cans. Broken glass left on beaches is a hazard to every living thing in the area. Some advice: avoid taking anything potentially lethal to animals on picnics. Shed all wrappings ahead of time. Pick up any litter or six-pack holders you might see, and don't litter.

Chiropractic Health Hints

BY DR. RAYMOND SERAFIN, D.C.
A NATURAL HEALTH FAMILY PRACTICE

IF YOU DO NOT ENJOY GOOD HEALTH

CONSULT YOUR CHIROPRACTOR FIRST

Bad Posture Habits Cause Slippage of The Hip

Slippage of the hip is one of the most frequently encountered problems of the chiropractic profession. This, being so common, must therefore have a common cause and it does: faulty posture habits.

Before we discuss these, it must be said that there are other things that can cause slippage and they cannot be covered here. Such factors as structure deficiencies that will cause a constant slippage and falls will have the same end result, but by a large majority, posture habits are responsible for most hip displacements.

Most every cause of hip slippage will have history of crossing the legs while sitting. This habit will weaken the joint between the hip and the spinal column by persistent rotation backward of the hip on the side of the leg that is crossed over the other. This usually will result in a sciatic neurogia or neuritis (is not corrected). Some other habits damaging to this particular joint are: while standing, supporting the bulk of the weight on one leg, and bending of the back in lifting. The aforementioned causes are but a few, but are the most common causes. The other causes are mostly variations of these same habits that subject this joint to strains.

Naturally the hip should be replaced and the habit problems dealt with to effect lasting relief.

A brief discussion of correct habits that would protect the sciatic joint from habit strains follows:

Sitting should begin with the feet flat on the floor, sitting well back in the chair, so that the buttocks and the upper back touch and rest against the back of the chair, the head erect. Standing should always be straight and with the weight equally distributed on both legs. In lifting, always face the object to be lifted and keep the back straight and bend the knees. All bending should be done by the knees and keep the back straight for supporting the weight to be lifted. When carrying something that is carried on one shoulder or in one hand, always change sides so that work is done equally by both sides. Postural imbalances cause many physical difficulties.

Growers would like to see stiffer labeling standards

Vintners sour on state's wine label proposals

If last week's gathering of the Alameda County Wine Growers Association is any indication, local vintners are frustrated and perhaps fed up in their dealings with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, federal overseer of the liquor industry.

And they're not too happy with the State Department, either.

The roots of the problem go deep into a set of federal proposals to stiffen labeling laws.

California growers, historically and commercially the forefront of the American wine industry, are leading the drive to curb or at least correct some errant bureaucratic ideas.

An early government offer of "seals" to designate somehow select wines met with the industry's disfavor.

Special seals would lend an aura of respectability to what might prove to be pretentious vinegar, they argued. Rather than protecting consumers, an argument the BATF uses as its premise, the seals could very well rip off buyers.

The BATF "is trying to prove how tough it is," said Wente Bros. Winery's Eric Wente, "especially to other bureaucracies and Ralph Nader or the press, whichever is stronger."

"What you have is a basically uneducated, uninformed bureaucracy trying to make an impression on consumers and other bureaucrats. They're telling consumers, 'Imagine what it would be like without us.'"

And now, he warned his audience of about two dozen growers and vintners, there's talk of disbanding the BATF and giving its job to the Internal Revenue Service or the proposed federal consumer protection agency.

As wine makers whose family names generally go on the label, or whose reputations always are on the line in a personal, sensitive business, they want higher standards than those now imposed.

The local association voted last week to back the state Wine Institute's recommendations that would raise minimum standards on wines.

If labeled as a "varietal" — like petite sirah, cabernet sauvignon or pinot chardonnay — the wine would have to be made from 75 per cent of that grape. Current law requires only 51 per cent varietal composition.

Similarly, a vintage year designation would, under the institute's recommendations, mean 95 per cent of the grapes were harvested in that year. An appellation of origin would mean 75 per cent of the grape came from that region.

"We don't want something labeled 'Livermore Valley wine' when only 28 per cent of the grapes came from the Valley," said Wente.

It gets a bit confusing when the wines are blends, as are most varietals, or from several respectable regions.

Imagine, for example, a "Livermore - Monterey Mendocino Chardonnay - Chenin Blanc." There's even more talk of tightening the prized "estate bottled" designation.

With that appellation, a wine would have to be 95 per cent from that area, although the vineyards would not have to be contiguous to the winery.

Wente called it a "very rigorous requirement," but noted the entire subject is "open to negotiations with the BATF."

But strict labeling of U.S. wines does nothing to protect consumers — and local wineries — from imports.

The Europeans have their tradition laden labeling laws that cannot be blended into the American proposals.

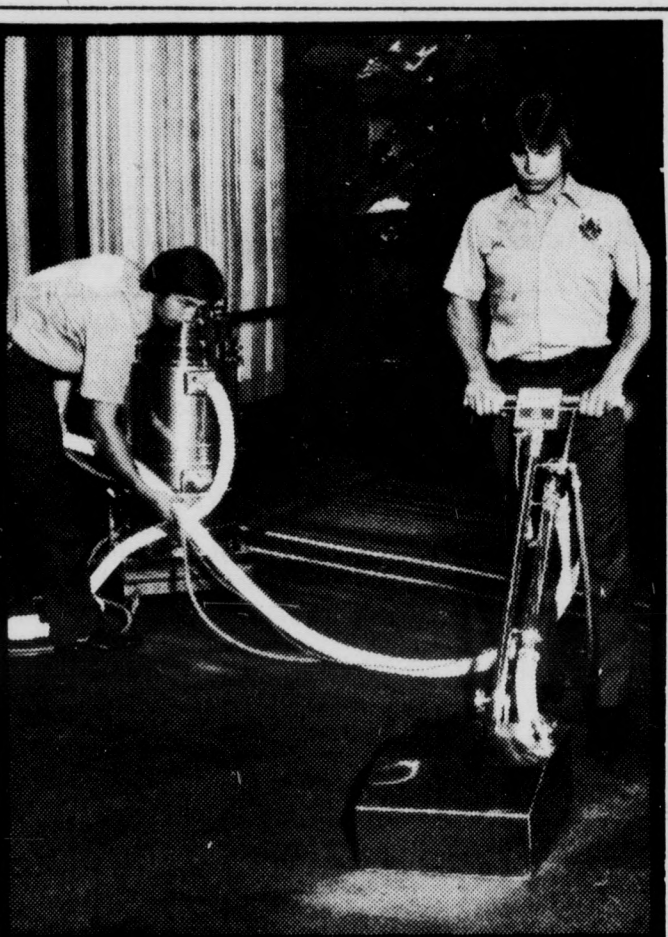

"We don't want to be treated better," said one grower, "but as citizens, as equals with the importers. How are we going to do it?"

"I've been asking the same questions for years," echoed Concannon Vineyards' Joe Concannon.

On-site foreign inspections similar to those the U.S. conducts on overseas meat operations have been suggested, "but they've been killed by the State Department," he said. "The problem for the past 10 years has been the State Department."

Most of the European nations with heavy investment in wine are in NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, although France, scarred by its "winegate" scandal a few years ago, pulled out of the treaty group.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 19-year-old college junior and I look forward to success in business. My father died three years ago, and while he never pressed me, I know he'd be pleased that I'm choosing his line of work. My mother is ultra-passive. If I'm like her I'll end up being pushed into a back office just as thousands of women have been over the years. My mother can't understand my ambition and it's a constant source of conflict though we love and respect each other. Am I wrong to think her attitudes won't work? — R.P.

DEAR R.P.: I'm not sure just what her attitudes are, but if she's afraid of taking risks, and is too concerned with being liked by everyone than I think you're probably right in assuming that this is not the route to the top.

Set your goals, consider what you want and when you want it. Acquire the technical or specialized training you will need.

You're fortunate to have had your Father's encouragement for he may have already given you much of the preparation you need in what is still largely a man's world.

Be ready and willing to take risks and don't be afraid of temporary setbacks as long as you feel you're moving in the right direction.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I just don't understand why our eldest son is such a coward. Neither my husband nor I have any unusual fears and neither have any of our daughters. Our son is intelligent but he is so shy that he's afraid to make decisions. This hesitancy drives his father crazy and he can hardly resist poking fun at him. I try to keep peace by telling my husband that our son will grow out of these fears and become more manly and less shy. Secretly, I'm beginning to wonder. Is there anything we can do to help? — C.K.

DEAR C.K.: Yes. The first thing you can do is to try to understand your child's fears. You can reassure him by telling him that a certain amount of fear is normal, that it can help to avoid danger and keep us alive. Unrealistic fears can be overcome. Your son doesn't have to spend his life being afraid of things and situations that are harmless.

The person who is afraid has to learn how to take risks. You can help your son if you encourage him to take risks in situations where he can experience a sense of victory over his fear. This will give him the confidence he needs.

Perhaps your son wouldn't fear making decisions so much, if he were reassured that it would be quite acceptable for him to make a mistake. Sometimes, parental demands for perfection, or near perfection, can have a crippling effect upon their children. We learn from making mistakes.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — A couple of months ago I turned yellow and my urine turned brown. The doctor said it was gallstones.

I had my gall bladder out 38 years ago, but the doctor did not let me go until he had operated. I had no pain and he showed me two stones that look like big cherry stones. All gallstones I have seen before were green.

Can stones come back again? My bowels look black since my operation most of the time. An old nurse told me if you have bleeding this happens.

DEAR READER — You are describing jaundice that does occur when the bile duct is obstructed — as with a stone. Even though you had your gall bladder removed years ago you still may form bile and the bile still drains through the bile ducts into your intestine.

The bile is formed by the liver and the pigments in the bile give the characteristic brown to black or green color of the bowel movement.

When the bile duct is obstructed for whatever reason these pigments cannot drain into your intestine and they build up in your blood stream. This causes jaundice as the pigment permeates the skin. The blood is filtered by the kidneys and some of the increased pigment is eliminated in the urine causing the colored urine you experienced.

There are several different kinds of gallstones.

It's true that bleeding can cause black bowel movements. Actually the pigment in bile comes from the hemoglobin in red blood cells. The digested red blood cells may cause a "tarry" stool. Dark stools are commonly the normal results of draining bile and its pigment changes during the digestion process.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 65 and have high blood pressure. I am taking Hydrores to control it. I don't smoke (never did) until after the evening meal. Then I smoke two or three pipes of tobacco. Does this have any effect on my well being?

DEAR READER — Probably not. As long as a pipe smoker does not inhale smoke he usually has a limited increased health risk. He may increase his chances of lip or tongue cancer but the risk is small in a person who smokes as little as you do.

Former cigarette smokers often switch to pipes or cigars and inhale the smoke. This is worse than the cigarette was to begin with.

Losing an excess fat or any fat that you could eliminate might help lower your blood pressure. Relaxing after the meal may be good for you. A good walk after meals might also help if you are not getting enough exercise. It might help you more than the pipe.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES A VIOLIN MAKE ITS SOUND?"

JOANNE MASON
AGAWAM, MA

A violin is a stringed instrument that is played with a bow.

When you tuck a violin under your chin and draw the bow across the strings, the strings vibrate very rapidly. These vibrations produce the tones.

The hollow part of the instrument — the sound box — amplifies (makes louder) the sound of the strings stretched across it.

The bow is a thin stick of wood with strands of horsehair stretched from end to end. The hairs are rubbed with a substance called rosin so they will "grip" the strings just tightly enough so that each string vibrates at just the right speed to produce a different note or tone.

To obtain other notes, the player shortens the part of the string that is free to vibrate by pressing it down on the fingerboard with his finger. The shorter the string, the higher the sound.

Benito Garozzo of Italy has long been regarded as one of the best, if not the best bridge player of today. Here we see him picking up an extra 300 points against a four-spade, doubled contract.
The play was such that we doubt if many of you readers will see how Benito managed to set South more than one trick after the heart lead.

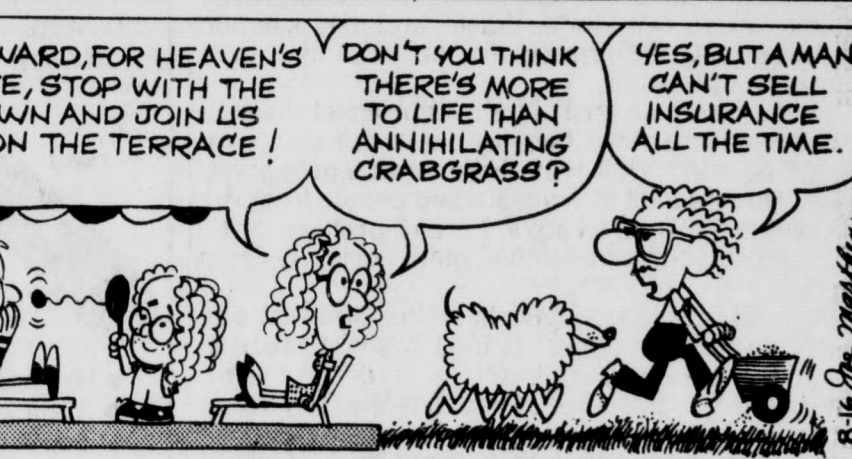

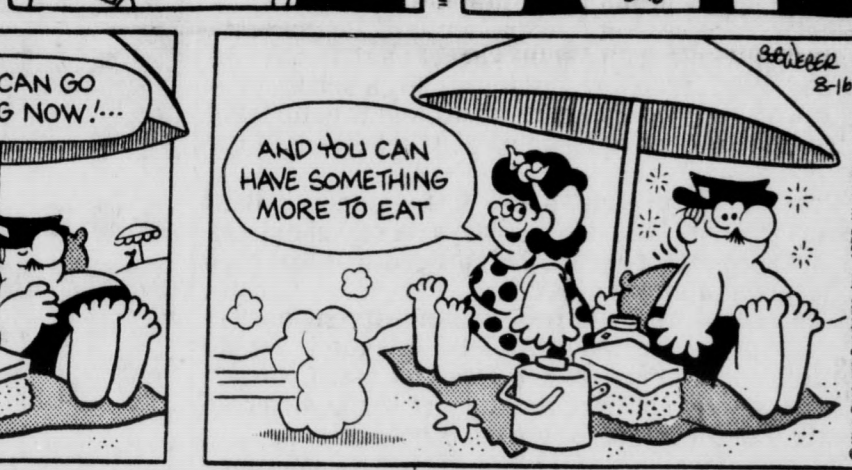

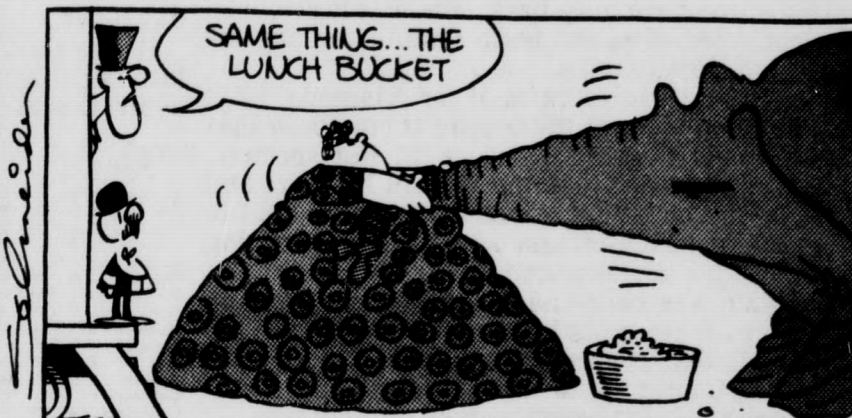

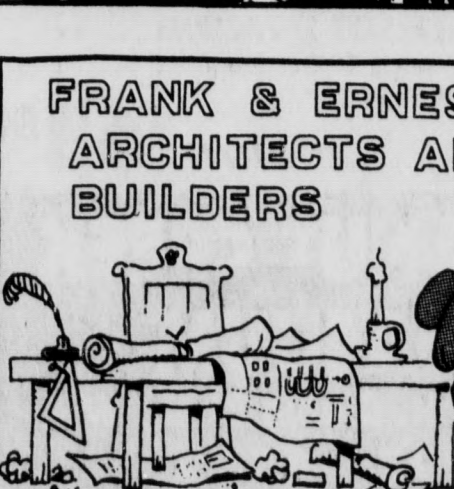

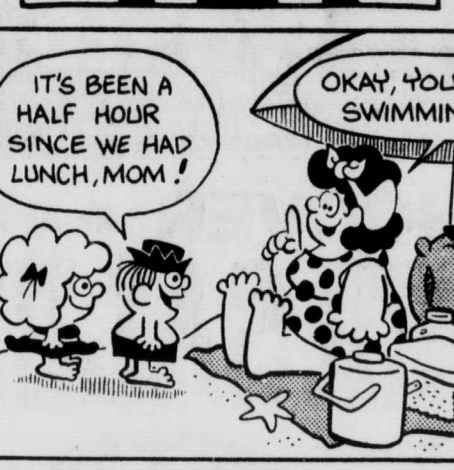

Here is Benito's play. He won the heart with his ace and led his singleton trump. South won and led a diamond to dummy's queen, whereupon Benito started to develop one of the finest swindles of all time. He simply played a low diamond.

South led back dummy's last diamond and Benito played low again!

Now declarer went into deep thought. Obviously, West held the 10? Finally, South decided that Benito had started with four diamonds to the 10. He stuck in his nine of diamonds and West collected one of the surprise tricks of all time, when he won a trick with the 10.

Actually, Benito risked nothing by ducking two diamonds. South was marked with five and since dummy held but one trump, Benito was sure to make his ace before the hand was over.

Something to prove

On Sports

For some reason, and most people don't really know why, Contra Costa has dominated the All-Star high school football classic with Alameda since the series began in 1966.

Contra Costa has won seven games to just four for Alameda, although the latter has taken three out of the last six contests. Contra Costa won last year's contest easily, 25-14.

Whatever the outcome of the game, East Bay Athletic League players have always had a large part in the All-Star Classic and this year's affair at Antioch's Eells Field Saturday night should be no exception. There are five EBAL players on the Alameda team and two on the Contra Costa squad.

EBAL players on the Alameda squad are Mike Colvin of Foothill, Vance Rushing and Larry Burke of Granada, Tim Palmer of Livermore and Bob Klein of Dublin. EBAL players named to the Contra Costa team are Dave Cowan of Monte Vista and San Ramon's John Arnaudon.

A notable absence from the Alameda roster is Dublin's great running back, Jim Boulware, who was not selected to the team despite running for 1,700 yards last year.

That may prove to be fatal for Alameda, as it doesn't seem to have the overall team speed that Contra Costa has. Boulware, a 10 flat sprinter, would have given the Alameda team both size and power in the backfield. Alameda seems content to go with a big-back offense as most of its running backs weigh over 190 pounds.

But what has been the major reason Alameda has generally taken its lumps over the years?

Alameda County draws from about 45 schools to just 28 for Contra Costa. That alone should give it an advantage but it hasn't worked out that way.

Perhaps the main reason can be determined by the small number of Oakland Athletic League players on the Alameda squad. The OAL very seldom has more than two players on the team and they generally don't play a major role in the games.

This is in contrast to the Alameda County All-Star basketball team, which this season, was dominated by players from the OAL.

Oakland is a hotbed of prep basketball but football is almost a secondary sport in that city. The OAL teams have done very poorly in competition against schools from other leagues on the gridiron and as a result, has few players selected to the All-Star team.

Another factor may be one of community support. Aside from the EBAL and the Mission Valley Athletic League, high school football in Alameda County doesn't draw the crowds that it does in places like Antioch or Pittsburg. High school football in those towns reaches an almost fanatic level during the fall, rivaling some of grid hotbeds of the Midwest and Texas.

Berkeley High, which has had some excellent teams the past two years, always has good material, but support for the football program at that high school is at a minimal level.

The school with the best community support in the Richmond-Berkeley Athletic League is Pinole Valley, and that school is in Contra Costa County.

As a whole, community support for high school football in the entire Bay Area is going down.

A coach from one of the Far Western Conference college teams says not as much emphasis is put on the prep football programs in this area as it is in Southern California.

"It's almost unheard of for a high school coach in this area to be fired because his team isn't winning," he said. "However, down south that happens a lot. There's a lot of transplanted people from the Midwest and South living in LA and perhaps that's the reason. They take football more seriously down there."

Perhaps the reason people in the Midwest and South give more support to high school football is because those areas are basically made up of semi-rural communities where football is the Only Thing on Friday nights.

Here, in a county with a population of about 1,080,000, high school football is lost among the variety of activities that include the World Champion Oakland Raiders, and other professional sports teams.

While Contra Costa County is essentially part of the same area as Alameda, there is generally a more "small-town feeling in the suburbs. Even Concord, with 100,000 people, has a great deal more community support for its prep teams than a town like Berkeley.

Community support may not have that more to do with a winning football program but more observers believe it does.

"There's no question community support helps a prep football program," the FWC coach went on.

Clearwater, Kluba fire a 63

Despite a scoring mistake on the second hole Kent Kluba of Castlewood Country Club and Keith Clearwater combined to fire a 63 to take the lead after the first day of competition in the Livermore City Junior Best Ball Tournament at Las Positas Men's Golf Club yesterday.

They birdied the second hole but made a mistake on the scoring card. Otherwise the talented pair would have received a 62.

It is believed to be the best 18-holes ever shot in the tournament.

Competition will continue today with 18 holes in the morning. The top 10 teams all-around (except for the girls' division) plus ties will go 18 more rounds in the afternoon to determine the winner.

Both Clearwater and Kluba are veterans of junior golf competition, each having competed in the recent Northern California Golf Association Junior Championships.

Oakland loses 16th out of 17

CLEVELAND — Rick Waits, Don Hood and Sid Monge combined to hurl a sixhitter against the sliding Oakland A's as the Cleveland Indians took a 7-2 victory Monday night.

It was Oakland's 16th loss in its last 17 games while Cleveland picked up its third victory in a row and seventh in the last eight games.

Waits, 7-4, started and picked up the victory with 51-3 innings of two-hit ball. He was removed after walking the bases loaded with one out in the sixth.

Hood came on and got out of the jam by inducing Manny Sanguillen to hit into a double play.

The Indians iced the victory with four runs in the fourth inning.

Oakland starter Jim Umberger, 1-4, walked Andre Thornton to start the inning and Bill Melton was safe on an error.

Umberger then threw wildly into center field on a pickoff attempt at second with Thornton scoring and Melton going to second.

Approval for big state tax relief plan

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A special legislative committee agreed Monday on a tax shift bill that would impose $2.4 billion in new taxes over the next five years and give $7.1 billion in tax relief.

Most of the tax relief would go to homeowners in annual rebate checks which would average $225.

Most of the new taxes would be imposed on business to make up for proposed abolition of the business inventory tax, a $443-million annual source of revenue which both liberals and conservatives say drives business and jobs out of the state.

The breakthrough in a month of negotiations by a special Senate-Assembly committee came on a compromise proposed by Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga, author of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s tax relief plan.

But the compromise, which contains most provisions requested by Brown, was not offered as the Democratic governor's proposal. A Brown spokesperson, assistant press secretary Bobbie Metzger, said the governor was still studying it and was not prepared to comment on it.

The plan, which could be sent to the floors of the Senate and Assembly later this week, would also impose $2.5 billion in new taxes, for a net tax reduction of $4.6 billion over five years.

Another bill which is expected to arrive soon on the Senate and Assembly floors would spend an additional $4.1 billion over the next five years for local schools.

Both legislative and administration fiscal officers agree that the combined total of those two bills is more than the state can afford without a major tax increase.

That means chances are great that one or both of the bills will be rejected and sent back to new special committees to be cut.

All four Democratic members of the committee writing the tax relief bill voted for the plan presented Monday.

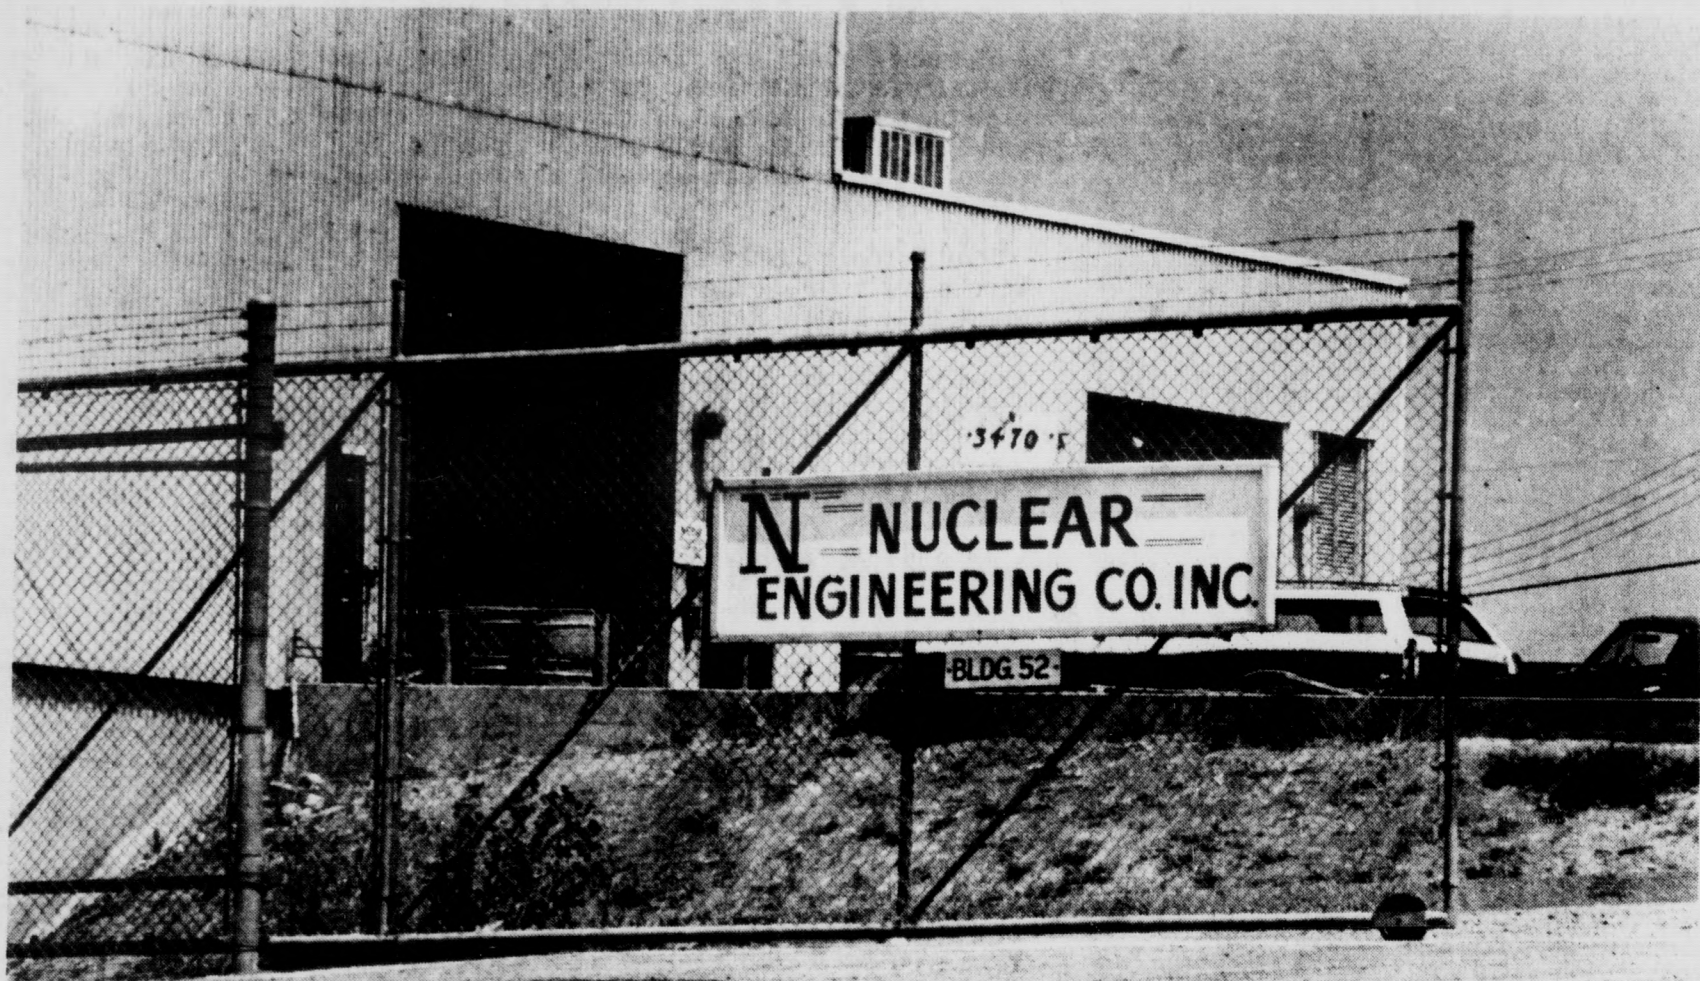

The two Republicans voted no, but they had opposed most provisions of the plan throughout a month of negotiations.

The agreement came between Smith and three liberal Democrats on the committee who wanted more relief for low-income homeowners and renters, higher income tax brackets and less stringent controls on state and local government spending.

"We like it. We want to adopt it, and we hope we can get education to cut their plan," said Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, chairman of the committee.

In the final proposal, Smith dropped his opposition to an increase in the capital gains tax. Petris dropped his opposition to proposed revenue limits on state and local government.

Smith also won an extra $175 million over five years to give more property tax relief to homeowners in the $15,000 to $30,000 income range.

The largest radioactive garbage firm in the United States Nuclear Engineering Company — has a gathering facility tucked away behind PG & E's research center in San Ramon. The tall windowless building is located near the east end of Crow Canyon Road.

Low-level nuke waste stored in Pleasanton

Dumping radioactive garbage has boomed to a multi-million dollar operation since it was started in Pleasanton 20 years ago and is considered by some in the field as a "cut throat" business.

Nuclear Engineering Company — the largest and oldest radioactive outfit in the U.S. — monopolizes disposal of radioactive waste by owning four out of five of the operative burial grounds. Currently, NEC is part of the $2 billion Teledyne Corporation home-based in Los Angeles.

NEC's competitor, the Southwest Nuclear Company of Pleasanton recently won a battle for low-level waste produced by Lawrence Livermore Laboratory. On July 11, LLL contracted Southwest Nuclear to haul and dispose their radioactive waste for a price quoted at $38,662.15.

Southwest Nuclear's Executive Vice President Jim Harvey pioneered the Beatty, Nev. disposal site and worked with Nuclear Engineering Company for 16 years — eight of which he spent as president of NEC.

Harvey explained the process in which burial grounds bounce between state and private ownership.

"The company buys the land," he said, "then it's deeded to the state and leased back to the company whose funds are used to develop the dump site."

"Of the material we handle," Harvey said, "90 per cent is very low-level. All we do is pick up the containers and put them in a small truck 10 or 15 at a time."

He said that it is safe to handle the containers with bare hands but noted that Southwest's garbagemen do wear gloves.

"Of every 100 containers we pick up," Harvey said, "75 are steel drums and the rest are either fiber board or wood boxes. There is stuff we carry in lead containers."

Most of Southwest Nuclear's garbage comes from hospitals, universities, and the Mare Island Naval Shipyard. From there it is transported to a warehouse behind Tennis Town where it is stored for a week or two until enough drums are collected to make a load for a flat-bed truck or 18 foot van.

From the warehouse, all the contaminated material is transported to a western disposal site at Beatty, Nev. or Richland, Wash. where it is placed in a clay, landfill trench surveyed to be the best soil for containment.

The General Accounting Office estimates that by the year 2000 the nuclear industry will have produced more than a billion cubic feet of low-level radioactive waste — enough to pave a coast to coast four-lane highway one foot thick.

James Neel, president of Nuclear Engineering Company, said that 98 per cent of the radioactive waste buried at his sites will decay in about 100 years although some of the garbage decays in 48 hours.

Neel, whose company moved from Walnut Creek to Louisville, Ky. in 1974 admitted that Uranium and Plutonium isotopes are at his burial facilities. "Plutonium," he said, "has a half-life of 24,000 years."

The real problem with radioactive waste authorities feel is in the disposal of high level waste defined by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission as spent fuel from nuclear reactors.

"Everybody is wondering what to do," said NEC's Neel. "As it stands now there is a government program that will happen in 1985 calling for special nuclear material (Uranium-235, Uranium-233, and Plutonium isotopes) to be buried in salt, granite, or shale depositories."

A report from Argonne National Laboratory in Illinois indicated that the leakage rate under such conditions would be small enough to make geological storage of high-level waste safe.

Neel explained that 95 per cent of enriched Uranium used by nuclear reactors ends up as high-level waste. Until the Federal Government can decide what to do with this waste it is kept in liquid form at reprocessing plants in huge storage tanks called "swimming pools."

The spent nuclear fuel must be continually cooled and the GAO estimates some 265 million gallons of the stuff will be produced by the end of the century.

"High level waste is a problem," said Southwest Nuclear's Jim Harvey. "But, it can be dealt with."

The advent of lasers has shed some new light on disposal high-level waste. Phil Coyle, Deputy Associate Director for Lasers at LLL said using lasers to separate one isotope from another has "lots of potential applications for waste processing."

"The dominant example is using lasers to enrich uranium for reactor fuel," Coyle said. "This has only been done on a microscopic scale in the lab."

Coyle said that laser enrichment promises to be much cheaper, uses less energy and requires a smaller plant to process. He said that although there is no present program funded to examine laser treatment of spent reactor fuel, it is hoped that technology from current laser programs could be used in the future to develop waste processing systems.

But with all things considered, Coyle said research would not be complete for about 10 years.

Lucky after the price wars

DUBLIN — When you spell Lucky Stores, spell it with a capital "D" as in diversity.

With corporate headquarters here on Clark Avenue, Lucky operates 839 food, fabric, drug, automotive, restaurant, sporting goods and membership department stores in 29 states.

What started as a six-supply market operation in Northern California 46 years ago has evolved into one of the top ten largest retailers in the United States.

Wayne Fisher, the affable chairman of the board and chief executive officer, presides over a corporation that continues to diversify and move with the times.

As a result, as Fisher proceeds to illustrate, Lucky has been a trend-setter amongst the giants of retailing in the U.S. — Kresge, Southland, Winn-Dixie, Dayton Hudson, Safeway, and Penney.

And Fisher is highly optimistic this pattern will continue. He shows a ledger that indicates sales rose 10 per cent and earnings 48 per cent during the first quarter of the present year.

"We are tremendously pleased with these results, but it should be recalled that in the first quarter of 1976 we were deeply involved in a number of aggressive grocery-pricing situations in various parts of the country. Happily, most of these 'price wars' have abated and our food regions once again are showing adequate profits," Fisher comments.

The physical facilities on Clark Avenue are truly a story by themselves.

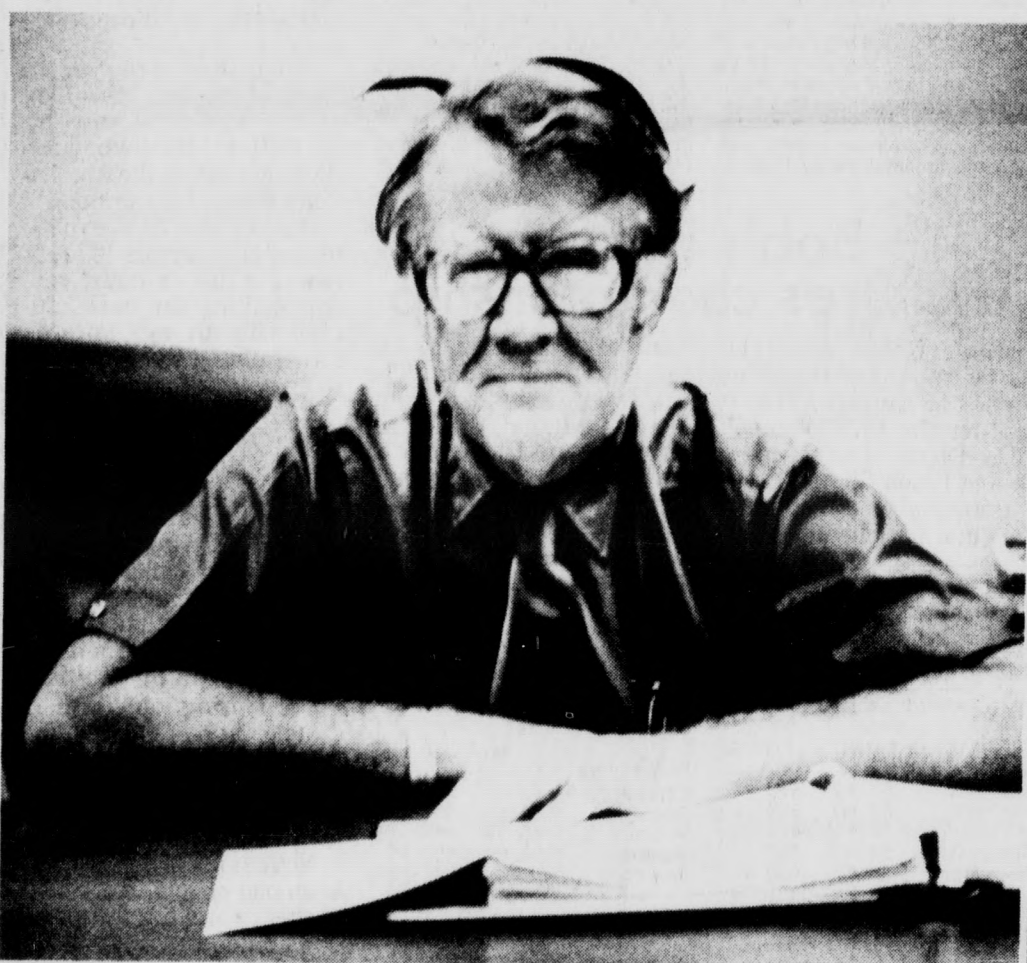

Located just off Dublin Boulevard in Dublin's industrial park, the 35,000-square foot structure was opened 3½ years ago. The building is divided into two parts — the data processing section and the administration offices.

"We decided about three years ago to go to a central computer section that would tie in the eight sub-areas of our operations," notes Fisher.

A look at the wide-ranging operations demonstrates the need for a central computer base.

Lucky has 411 stores in nine states, including 262 Lucky super markets and discount centers in Arizona, California, Nevada, and Washington; 20 Food Basket stores in San Diego County; 125 Eagle Super Markets and discount centers in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Texas and Wisconsin; and four Magnamart food warehouse stores in Texas.

But that is just the beginning, the base.

Wayne Fisher has been with Lucky 15 years.

Operating under the names of Gemco and Memco, the corporation has 64 stores in seven states, including 52 Gemco stores in this state, Arizona, Nevada and Texas. All contain a food department.

In the field of fabrics, there are 140 retail stores, including 135 Hancock stores in 19 southern, central and western states and five fabric warehouse stores in three states. These warehouses supply 203 independent fabric stores.

In the realm of restaurants, Lucky Stores, Inc. controls 142 outlets with 140 under the banner of "Sirloin Stockade," family steak houses operating in 18 midwestern, southern and southwestern states. They also serve as wholesale supplier to 42 franchised restaurants.

And also ... 36 Kragen Auto Supply stores in Northern and Central California, 10 Dorman's Auto Centers, 8 Dorman's Tire Stores, 20 Mays Drug Stores in Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin, 2 Stacy Drug and Variety Stores in Southern California, and 6 L & G Sporting Goods stores in the Los Angeles and Anaheim areas.

Lucky started to diversify 17 years ago with GEMCO, when they acquired a store in Anaheim. They have since added a super market to it.

In 1968, Lucky moved boldly into the fabric and family steak house markets.

And little more than a week ago they acquired Atherton Industries, which operates the Pic-a-Dilly apparel stores in 11 western states. The nearest Pic-a-Dilly is right here in Dublin, in fact.

Fisher believes the corporation has come through the "price war" of last year pretty much unscathed.

Thanks in some degree to its diversity.

But what of the flourishing of the convenience stores and fast food chains in the past five years or so?

Well Fisher has a ready explanation by simply pointing back to the restaurants, GEMCO and MEMCO, the drug stores and the super markets ad infinitum.

Lucky is truly everything to most everybody.

And the future for this Valley-based operation looks bright — with a capital "B."

'Witch' makes switch

BURTON, Ohio (AP) — Bonnie Huffman has forsaken her nun's wimple for a witch's pentagram.

She was known as Sister GERALYN during her 11 years with the Order of St. Francis; but she now is a full-fledged Dianic witch.

The metamorphosis, she said, began when she grew tired of power struggles within the convent and within the church. She went from convent to coven when she discovered that her brand of witchcraft is a religion which practices "a sophisticated brand of social justice for its citizens."

When discussing witchcraft, her first warning is not to confuse it with devil worship and black magic.

"We don't believe in a devil," she said.

Ms. Huffman explained that the Dianic order has a feminist tradition and focuses its worship on the creative force in the universe identified as the Goddess by its followers. It is also referred to as the Old Religion.

Ex-Pleasanton planner awarded new post

Former Pleasanton Planning Commissioner Woody Pereira has been appointed planning director for Shapell Industries of Northern California.

He will be responsible for Shapell's land acquisition, planning and engineering design and will serve as the division's governmental liaison, division chief James Ghilmetti said in making the announcement.

Pereira will concentrate his work in Alameda and San Mateo counties where Shapell now has two active developments and seven in the planning process.

Pereira, 45, served on the planning commission for seven years, and was awarded the City of Pleasanton's Annual Mayor's Award for sensitivity in the development of the city.

He was appointed to the Mayor's special housing commission in 1967 and served on the Pleasanton Board of Adjustment from 1969 to 1974.

A native of the Bay Area, Pereira graduated from Tech High in Oakland, attended the University of the Pacific in Stockton, and earned a degree from San Francisco State University in general science, with a focus on local government.

He served as a U.S. Air Force Pilot after graduation.

Pereira, who has done private development, worked for Gentry Development where he did the planning and project management for Gentrytown in Antioch. He also coordinated Gentry's Danville and Fremont developments.

He later was the planner on the design team for Crocker Homes on the Diablo West development in Danville.

Following this, Pereira became the regional manager for Morrison Homes.

In addition to the Mayor's Award, Perreira received two additional commendations for work in Pleasanton.

He currently serves as president of the Associated Building Industry Eastern division and has been on its board of directors for four years.

He has served on numerous industry-government committees.

Park space dwindling

More than a third of the state park campgrounds taking reservations are already filled for Labor Day, according to state and recreation director Herbert Rhodes. State beach camp-sites south of San Luis Obispo on the statewide reservation system are fully taken as are most coastal campsites.

Campgrounds at Donner Memorial State Park near Lake Tahoe and Brannan Island State Recreation Area in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta are reserved at night and for the entire holiday weekend. Campsite reservations are going fast and Rhodes advised vacationers to contact the nearest Ticketron outlet soon for reservations.

The few first-come first-served campsites would probably be filled early the Friday before Labor Day according to Rhodes said.

Aug. 20 state park rangers in the Tahoe area have scheduled a difficult eight hour climb for experienced hikers to Star Lake and the three peaks surrounding it including Mt. Freely, the highest peak in the Tahoe basin. Hikers are scheduled to meet at 8 a.m. in the Safeway parking lot at the South Tahoe "Y," Highway 89 and U.S. 50, South Lake Tahoe.

Mount Diablo State Park remains closed for trail and picnic area repairs in the wake of the fire there two weeks ago. Rhodes said no state parks buildings were damaged but much vegetation in the northern half of the park was destroyed. The park will be closed for at least another week but would be reopened as soon as possible, he said.

Portions of the parks in the Big Sur area and the coastal mountains south of San Francisco are closed because of the extreme fire danger and in many parks open fires and smoking on trails are prohibited.

Rhodes said recreation Lake Oroville State Recreation Area and Folsom Lake State Recreation Area would remain open though both lakes were low. Boats can still be launched and on-shore services to visitors remain normal. Ramps at Clear Lake State Park are reported closed however.

They've got more coming

MARTINEZ — A search is being made for certain welfare recipients who are eligible for back payments of general assistance money they were denied in 1974-1976.

The search is being conducted by the social service department of the Contra Costa County Welfare Department, according to Robert E. Jorlin. He is county welfare director.

The main thrust is to locate all persons who were denied or discontinued from general assistance solely because they were living with someone who received Social Security payments for aid to the disabled, blind or aged from Jan. 1, 1974 to Oct. 1, 1976.

A recent California Appeals Court judgment in the case of Rogers vs. Detrich held that county departments of public welfare may not take into account social security and other benefits being received by members of a household when those departments are acting on an application for welfare assistance by another householder.

An example would be a woman who was not yet eligible for social security payments being denied aid because her husband received social security payments that amounted to more than the general assistance grant for two persons.

The counties of Contra Costa, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Diego and San Francisco were court ordered to change their policy and make back payments to anyone they had denied under the policy.

Jorlin said all persons who applied for general assistance but were denied such aid during the dates mentioned before should contact the nearest county social service office to see if they are eligible for back payments.

Local offices are located at: 85 Cleveland Road, Pleasant Hill; 320-13th St. and 100-37th St., Richmond; 3865 Shopping Heights Lane, Pittsburg; 525 Second St., Rodeo; and 3630 San Pablo Dam Road., El Sobrante.

IT TOOK TEN YEARS TO DEVELOP A "TOTAL SYSTEM" THAT DELIVERS REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' CIGARETTE.

A low 'tar' cigarette is a complex system of interacting parts.

The tobacco. The filter. And even the paper.

Decade is the first low 'tar' in which all the parts have been arranged in perfect balance with each other. This is the Decade "Total System." And this is why Decade is the first low 'tar' with a taste worth smoking.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing" plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

We've developed a system called "Flavor Packing" that allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

This is in addition to our special taste blend of fifteen fine tobaccos, including exotic Turkish, full bodied Burley, and Bright, a tobacco known for its smoothness.

The Filter.
Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

The Decade filter is a combination of modern laser technology, plus our own exclusive research design. Simply, we've created a channel within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes. Which means you get taste from first puff to last.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

For Decade we use only high porosity cigarette paper. Ordinary paper inhibits the burn rate, which can diminish the taste and create the need to pull harder when you drag.

With Decade's high porosity paper however, you get an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.

A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack of Decade for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And after one taste we think you'll agree that our last 10 years were well worth the effort.

Only 5 mg.
'tar.'

Regular and Menthol.

That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.
